

Disaster Assistance Program Information

This sheet contains a complete listing of the available disaster assistance programs and the agencies/organizations that administer the program. Based on the information you provided during the registration interview, we have identified certain disaster assistance programs that may be helpful to you and have listed them in item number 28 at the bottom of your Application for Disaster Assistance.

If you have been referred to one or more of the following programs, you will be contacted directly:

- the Disaster Housing Program, administered by FEMA,
- the Individual and Family Grant (IFG) Program, administered by your State Government, or
- for a low interest loan, administered by the Small Business Administration (SBA).

For assistance from the other programs listed, you should find the corresponding program names from the list below, and then you must contact these agencies directly to learn how their programs can help you.

PLEASE NOTE: Even if you have not been referred to a particular program, you are welcome to contact any agency listed on this sheet if you feel you have disaster-related needs that can be addressed by that agency. Bear in mind, however, that these programs have conditions of eligibility that must be met before you can be approved for assistance.

Aging Services, Health and Human Services (HHS) : Services are available to meet the needs of the elderly who have been directly affected by a declared disaster (i.e., transportation, meals, home care, etc.).

Agricultural Aid, USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) : The USDA Rural Development may make emergency loans to farmers and ranchers (owners or tenants) who were operating and managing a farm or ranch at the time of the disaster. These loans are limited to the amount necessary to compensate for actual losses to essential property and/or production capacity. Farmers and ranchers may also apply for cost sharing grants for emergency conservation programs such as debris removal from crop/pasture lands, repairs to land/water conservation structures, and permanent fencing. Further information is available from your local USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA).
